The G&L LE-2, designed by the G&L enthusiasts of the www.GuitarsByLeo.com user group website. The first GbL-LE (Guitars by Leo) was produced in 1989, representing the first time a guitar company built an instrument designed by and exclusively for a web based usergroup. The LE broke new ground on how a guitar company interacts with its customers and influenced the design of later production models. Fast forward 15 years and G&L is at it again. The GbL group was excited about the iconic 1980's model, the SC-2, and encouraged by the news of the recent Fallout being added by the G&L lineup. So, they set to designing a guitar that combined the best of G&L's past and present by asking the same question the craftsmen at G&L Musical Instruments ask every day, "What would Leo do?". Just like the first LE, the LE-2 represents a host of unprecedented innovations and an unparalleled collaboration between a factory and the artists they serve.

Based on the new Fallout, the LE-2 features, for the first time, the MFD soapbar and F-100 MFD humbucker paired on a production G&L instrument. This is also the first time a production G&L has featured a bi-flex truss rod. The LE-2 is also optionally equipped with a DFS vibrato, not available on the hardtail-only Fallout. The Swamp Ash body is finished in an "off-menu" Autumnburst hue, offset by a single-ply pickguard. G&L, with the direct involvement of VP Dave McLaren, once again went above and beyond to make LE-2 a reality. The result is nothing short of amazing, this guitar features a three-way toggle switch and splittable bridge humbucker for ultimate versatility and unique usable voices in every combination. The quartersawn maple neck with either a maple or rosewood fingerboard give these guitars a beautiful feel and finish as well as excellent sustain and stability. G&L is only making 25 of these beautiful guitars exclusively for Music Source. Only 15 remain, each individually numbered.
